

POPSUGAR @POPSUGAR Thu Mar 10 21:31:47 +0000 2022

"The Batman" hit theaters on March 4, and Zoë Kravitz kicks tail in her role as #Catwoman. But the 33-year-old star isn't the first actor to slink into that iconic leather jumpsuit. (1/8)

<https://t.co/5brSawSal0>

Women have been portraying Catwoman since the 1960s, from Eartha Kitt to Michelle Pfeiffer and Halle Berry. (2/8)

<https://t.co/vatmEAXfGI>

The first Catwoman, Julie Newmar, played Batman's crime-stopping partner in the original TV series. With her false eyelashes and heavy, winged shadow, Julie was a prime example of the makeup trends of the '60s. (3/8)

<https://t.co/4AHP9H9ZXO>

When Newmar couldn't fill Catwoman's heels in the 1966 movie adaptation, Lee Meriwether was tapped to play the iconic role. Her Catwoman accessorized with a sequined mask and curly, flipped hair. (4/8)

When Julie Newmar left the Batman TV series in 1968, Eartha Kitt stepped into the role, becoming the first Black woman to do so. While Catwoman's mask and leather jumpsuit were staples at this point, Kitt's high and poofy ponytail set her apart from the rest. ■: @GettyImages (5/8) <https://t.co/zuDHTz6ofR>

Catwoman was always sexy, but Michelle Pfeiffer upped the ante in the 1992 movie "Batman Returns." With her kohl-lined eyes and red lips, it's easy to see why Bruce Wayne couldn't keep his eyes off her. ■: @GettyImages (6/8) <https://t.co/LwUfUgQPLy>

And no one can forget about Halle Berry playing the titular role in "Catwoman" (2004). Like Michelle's version of the superheroine, Halle's Catwoman wore a half-face mask and lots of leather. ■: @GettyImages (7/8) <https://t.co/5myxD8p8wW>

Meet more women who have taken on the infamous Catwoman role here: <https://t.co/5brSawSal0> (8/8)