@MinColonna In France, a woman has a right to an abortion on-demand until fourteen weeks. This means that, before that date, she does not have to prove a risk to herself or to her child to terminate. After fourteen weeks, an abortion is possible in extreme circumstances of severe risk.

@MinColonna Two appointments are needed to get an abortion, and the procedure is funded. Minors also have the right to an abortion, a fact especially important in cases of incest or rape.

@MinColonna Internationally, France is engaged for sexual, reproductive, maternal, child and adolescent health rights. Our definition of reproductive health includes that women have the capacity and the freedom to decide if and when to have children.

@MinColonna I end by pointing—as Min. for Equality @Romelsabelle did—to Simone Veil. As an advocate for women's rights and French Minister for Health, Madame Veil championed our legalization of abortion in 1970's. Her work ensures that every French woman has the right to define her future. <https://t.co/t2i10Z1x53>
